Jesus Christ, why does everybody have to walk on eggshells when talking about anything Israeli, how is his statement in any way controversial? Does everybody need to explicitly condemn Hamas in every sentence we say about Israel?

I think we all know the answer but you are not allowed to say that pro israelis have an EXTREMELY disproportionate control over world media (including social), banking entertainment and politics.

I don't think it's some specific conspiracy, more just a natural outcome of people with a shared vision having such power and influence.

And the fact you can't mention ANY of this means it will only go in one direction. In fact, check anyone in the entertainment industry who tries to even mention anything negative about Israel and see how their careers are going for a taste of how brutal they can be with this power.

If they didn't use it for evil I'd have to applaud it. Amazing system.

"pro israelis have an EXTREMELY disproportionate control over world media (including social), banking entertainment and politics."

Wink wink.

The concept of anti-semitism is one of the great gas lighting acts of human history. It has no true definition, thus can be used in any and all scenarios and people lap it up

So it doesn't exist?

Define 'it'

permalink embed save parent report reply

[–] senditup [score hidden] 2 hours ago

Hatred or suspicion of Jewish people.

permalink embed save parent report reply

[–] DTAD18 [score hidden] 2 hours ago

And how does that require it's own designation over all other nationalities?

Name one nation not arbitrarily hated by another

It's referring to hatred based on one's religious background, not nationality. Islamophobia, for another example.

Do you know the Quran well enough to state that hatred based on religion isnt justified?

If judaism purports annexation of other territories, what respect should it be given?

Are you arguing that hatred of Jewish people is justified?

permalink embed save parent report reply

[\[-\] DTAD18](#) [score hidden] 2 hours ago

Depends on the context.

Is hated for the British or any other occupying force justified?

I am allowed to hate or be suspicious of a Jewish person the same as I am allowed to hate or be suspicious of anyone else.

It's 'why' I would do that. If it is because of their religion then it's antisemitic.

If it's because they are a Zionist, pro apartheid asshole then I am perfectly within my rights to hate or be suspicious of them.

The International Holocaust Remembrance Alliance have a definition here:

[\[-\] ABortS1mpson](#) [score hidden] 1 hour ago

The definition is not the problem. The fact that Zionists muddy the waters between antisemitism and anti Zionism to their own benefit is the problem.

They are basically throwing Jewish people around the globe under the bus as they get unfairly targeted for the actions of a genocidal lunatic state.

The comment you replied to describes an imaginary global conspiracy of "pro Israel" people (AKA Jews) having disproportionate control on media, banking and entertainment... I think it is unambiguously anti-Semitic. No form of racism has an accurate scientific definition, and sometimes people make statements that can be interpreted in different ways. But not with this comment

[\[-\] DTAD18](#) [score hidden] 2 hours ago

Is it unambiguously anti semitic?

People cant have a public opinion on this subject in the media without severe consequence.

Odd no?

There are many types of opinions that you will face severe consequences for expressing them- that the earth is flat, that sub-Saharan Africans are inferior and so on...

You are free to express them, but no one owes you employment after you express them. That's how it is in free societies

Irish-Israeli girl Emily Hand freed by Hamas after 50 days of captivity in Gaza

[–] dustaz [score hidden] 2 hours ago

It has no true definition

Yes it does, the same as xenophobia and paranoia have a true definition

Xenophobia is based on an arbitrary resentment.

Theres nothing arbitrary about hating against racist behaviour.

You somewhat unsurprisingly missed the point.

Not really?

Paranoia and xenophobia are based in a misperception

Ok I'll say it. You, sir, are a blatant antisemite. I hope everyone can read your comments here and see that antisemitism is live and well in 2023

That means nothing as I dont give credence to one nation having some sort of special dispensation for their horrific actions.

They're getting away with literal murder for decades and people are too scared d to say anything for fear of getting tarred with an arbitrary brush.

And here is the definition of antisemitism, there's a whole list here of examples:
